PÉREZ
CATTLE COMPANY

Fellow Cattlemen,

As we prepare for this year's sale, there is plenty to be optimistic about in the cattle business. With historically tight cattle supplies and strong demand for beef, the long-term outlook remains positive for the commercial cow-calf producer. In a market where every pound has value, the right genetics can make a meaningful difference in your bottom line.

Like many across the Southwest, this year reminded us just how tough the cattle business can be. A destructive wildfire burned through much of our country, forcing us to repair 35 miles of fence, followed by a long, hot, dry summer with very little rain. As we write this letter, those fences are nearly repaired, we've received more than four inches of much-needed rain, and we hope the country will begin to turn around and grow a little grass before winter. We have a lot to be thankful for.

Years like this reinforce why we breed cattle the way we do. This is a real working ranch, and our cattle must earn their keep through heat, drought, rough country and limited resources. They need to be sound, functional and easy fleshing while still delivering the pounds and performance that put money in your pocket.
The bulls in this offering have been developed with that purpose in mind. Whether you are looking to add pounds, build better replacement females, improve carcass value or capture the added fertility, longevity and performance of heterosis, our goal is to provide genetics that work for your operation and help you produce a more valuable calf crop.

We know you have many choices when it comes to sourcing your next herd bull, and we sincerely appreciate the confidence you place in our program. If we can help you identify the bulls that best fit your cows, your environment and your goals, please give us a call.

We look forward to visiting with you and seeing you in Columbus.
